

(As a nation, we need leaders who do not go against the Laws of our Lord. Judgement is to come!)

Hours-Dead Pig Brought Into State of Undeath After Being Pumped Full of Scientific Sludge, Now They Want to Use It on Humans

Scientists recently announced an experiment that rings all sorts of alarm bells but could also offer hope to those who need organ transplants. But the science needs deep discussions about its underlying morality before it is accepted.

An article in the New York Times seems taken out of a Twilight Zone episode or perhaps from a story written by Mary Shelley. It told the story of a group of Yale scientists who injected the bodies of dead pigs with a new concoction that brought the organs of dead animals back to a partial level of life.

The pigs had been dead for more than an hour — no blood circulating, no brainwaves, just dead. But when the scientists coupled their new concoction with a machine to start the beasts' hearts pumping again, things changed things considerably.

Retrieved October 30,2022 from Hours-Dead Pig Brought Into State of Undeath After Being Pumped Full of Scientific Sludge, Now They Want to Use It on Humans \(westernjournal.com\)